Glen Cove, Huntington Station, Bayville - Hit Especially Hard by Corona

Long Island's Gold Coast has been shut-down by the national Coronavirus pandemic, with businesses shuttered, streets deserted, and thousands of people struggling with unemployment, illness and death.

Deserted streets are now the "new normal" with empty parking lots and dark, closed stores. The few businesses that remain open - the "essential services" - include food and pharmacy shops, medical facilities, and a few restaurants, still operating on a "take-out" basis.

Many delis are still open - but require that people wear masks and gloves and maintain a "social distance" of no less than six feet between customers. A few restaurants - the Brass Rail, the Locust Valley Inn, Buckram Stables, and the Coach Grill - have been open on some days - with reduced hours- but only for curbside pick-up of food. The Seven-Elevens and Stop & Shops are open - but again on reduced hours, and with social distancing.

Area hospitals - Glen Cove Hospital, Syosset Hospital and Huntington Hospital are all open, but under tight protocols - keeping family members out, to protect those inside from being infected. Medical rehab facilities like Glengariff in Glen Cove and St. Johnland in Kings Park are all on "lockdown" with no one - other than essential staff - allowed in or out.

Corona is particularly lethal to the elderly and the immuno-compromised - people suffering another illness. The areas best Senior homes - like the Plattduetsche Home - have erected a "bio-wall" combining a "lockdown" with rigorous testing protocols of all staff to keep Corona out. To date, the Plattduetsche has a 0% infection rate. The unlucky senior homes - like the Peconic Home in Greenport - have become cauldrons of death - as infected staff bring-in the virus, and it jumps from one elderly resident to another.

Every north shore community has been hit by Corona, but the communities of Glen Cove (362 cases) and Huntington Station (705 cases) are particular "hot spots" with much higher infection numbers. The numbers in Bayville (91 cases) is also very high - and has caused real panic amongst residents. The IGA store in Bayville was shut down for several days due to staff becoming infected.

The Corona infection numbers grow daily, and as of press time were as follows:

Suozzi Rival Tries To Throw Herself Off Ballot

Normally a political candidate challenges his or her opponent, if possible, to try to throw them off the ballot. But Melanie D'Arrigo, a would-be Democratic challenger to US Congressman Tom Suozzi (D Glen Cove), recently distinguished herself by filing legal challenges against the validity of her own campaign petitions. If successful, she would have knocked herself off the ballot.

This misfire - or publicity stunt - which has since been withdrawn, speaks to both D'Arrigo's erratic campaign and the hurdles faced by candidates challenging incumbents during the ongoing coronavirus crisis.

The source of the loopy challenges have now been identified as coming from D'Arrigo campaign operative, Peter Johnson, who is the spouse of D'Arrigo's new campaign manager Tracey Belcher.

D'Arrigo claims that her campaign's intent was to challenge the petitions and signatures contained therein for ballot placement of her Democratic Party opponents: Rep. Tom Suozzi, and attorney Michael Weinstock. She claims that the error resulted from "new deadlines, working hard, taking care of children, and miscommunication caused by the coronavirus pandemic..."

But New York Senate Democratic Chairman Jay Jacobs isn't buying it - rejecting any innocent explanation for D'Arrigo's maneuver. Accusing her of attempting to file a fake complaint against herself so that she could then falsely "play the victim," Jacobs called her actions "absolutely outrageous," and the attempt to "deceive the public and make it seem like" Congressman Tom Suozzi was attacking her.

The third candidate, Michael Weinstock also fumed at D'Arrigo's flimsy explanation. "Melanie should be ashamed of herself for pulling a stunt like this during a serious health crisis. I'm doing everything humanly possible to flatten the curve. I haven't left my house in 10 days except for delivering groceries to senior citizens. And this afternoon I am forced to leave my house and stand around in a crowded post office," to collect legal documents and respond to D'Arrigo's fake petition challenge.

D'Arrigo, a first-time candidate, is running as a self-described "progressive Democrat" and claims to be a "community activist." But she lives in a luxury home in an affluent, leafy, exclusive neighborhood in Port Washington.

Although D'Arrigo's legal challenge to her own petitions for office may detract from the seriousness of her candidacy, it should also demonstrate the difficulties of campaigning at a time when teamwork by assembled campaign workers and officials is subordinated to coordination via email, phone, or Skype or Zoom conferencing as a result of stay at home restrictions. It also shows how mis-cues - or attempts at dirty tricks - can be magnified in the absence of opportunities for live campaigning and campaign events to generate normal publicity

Toni Rettaliata-Tepe Passes Away

Antoinette "Toni" Tepe, the first woman Supervisor of the Town of Huntington and a former NYS Assemblywoman, passed away this week. Tepe, a Republican, served as Huntington Supervisor from 1987-89, and in the NYS Assembly from 1979-87. Her husband, Phil Tepe passed away just three weeks ago from a heart attack.

"Toni was a wonderful, tough, thoughtful and totally committed person. She was interested, caring and a pioneer for women leaders in our community. She made history as the first woman Supervisor of Huntington. Toni was a friend and a champion. She will be missed." stated Grant Lally, the Publisher of the North Shore Leader.

"Toni, my dear friend, has been called home by the Lord after a heroic battle with cancer. She is at peace now. There is no more pain. She joins her love, Phil who also recently passed," noted Suffolk County Republican Chairman Jesse Garcia.

"I express my deepest sympathies and condolences to the Tepe Family during this difficult time in their lives. Toni's family has all our thoughts and prayers. The streets of heaven are crowded with one more angel today." "Toni Rettaliata-Tepe was someone who was and is very near and dear to me." said Chad Lupinacci, the current Huntington Supervisor, as he spoke emotionally. "Toni" has been an integral part of my life for more than two decades. To say that Toni was a mentor to me would be an understatement. Toni was first a member of the New York State Assembly, representing the 10th Assembly District - the same district I had the pleasure of representing years later. Toni then went on to become the first female Supervisor - the only woman Supervisor to date - of the Town of Huntington. God Bless you Toni, and thank you for being a friend and for your service to our great state and the Town of Huntington."

Toni Tepe became the Chair of the Huntington Republican Party fifteen years ago. Under her leadership, the party's nominees were able to win back a majority of the Town Board - after twenty years of Democratic Party rule - just two years ago.

Memo to Gov. Cuomo: "Stop Restricting Chloroquine"

When the Corona outbreak first broke in America in late February, doctors and scientists had already begun searching for treatments to lessen the lethality off the virus.

President Trump was briefed about one treatment that had shown positive results in China: a combination of Chloroquine (an anti-malarial drug), with Azithromycin (an antibiotic) and Zinc (a virus replication inhibitor). Trump, citing the medical results at a press conference in March, said he had a "hunch" that the Chloroquine treatment offered hope.

The anti-Trump liberal political firestorm that then erupted was one of the most unscientific, psychotic, "flat earth" inquisitions we have seen in modern times.

Michigan Democratic Governor Gretchen Whitmer - who wants to be Joe Biden's vice presidential nominee - angrily issued an Order that doctors would be de-licensed and arrested if they prescribed Chloroquine. Nevada Democratic Governor Steve Sisolak just banned the drug.

The New York Times wrote stupidly about a man who died after drinking pool cleaner - a different chemical with a similar sounding name - implying that Trump wanted people to drink pool cleaner.

Then dozens of doctors - and thousands of surviving patients - started coming forward with testimonials of how Corona victims were saved by the Chloroquine treatment.

What these drugs seem to do is to slow Corona's attack on the red blood cells's Hemoglobin, slow replication of the virus, and stop secondary infections of the lungs. That gives patients' bodies more time to fight back. Fewer hospitalizations. Fewer ventilations, Fewer deaths.

Gov. Whitmer and many other Democrats quickly backtracked and "unbanned" the treatment. And the FDA approved the drug for emergency Corona cases

But one Governor - Andrew Cuomo - has not. He issued Executive Order Number 202.10 specifically restricting NY pharmacists from filling chloroquine prescriptions. The Order is "clever" in that it applies to pharamacists - not doctors - so doctors usually just write their prescriptions to get around Cuomo's Order. But why should they have to?

Cuomo's Order is limiting doctors and pharmacists treatments of sick patients - getting in between patients and their doctors - and literally killing people. Enough of the politics Andrew Coumo: Revoke the Executive Order limiting a life saving treatment.

TOWN OF HUNTINGTON TO ENFORCE SOCIAL DISTANCING

To the Editor:

While we encourage our residents to enjoy Town parks in a safe manner, our patrols cannot be at every one of the 100+ Town of Huntington parks and beaches 24/7 to ensure everyone is social distancing. This is why we have encouraged the public to report observed unsafe behavior on Town-owned property to our 24/7 Emergency Hotline at (631) 351-3234 in order for our patrols to respond and break up unsafe gatherings. Despite this, people have continued to gather unsafely against social distancing guidance.

Governor Cuomo announced that New York State is increasing the maximum fine for violations of the State's social distancing protocol to $1,000 to help address the lack of adherence to social distancing protocols.

The Governor reminded localities that we have the authority to enforce the protocols. In light of continued reports of gatherings at Town parks and beaches in violation of the social distancing guidelines and the Governor's Executive Orders, the Town will be stepping up enforcement of this NYS mandate. The Town of Huntington Department of Public Safety will be patrolling and enforcing the Governor's order and may write summonses for violations and fines of up $1,000.

We will be seeking permission from the State to turn over any fines collected to the "First Responders Fund;" this fund assists COVID-19 health care workers and first responders with expenses and costs, including child care. It is administered by the New York State Department of Health. We will keep you updated with progress on this.

Thank you in advance for your cooperation in keeping our community safe."

Chad A. Lupinacci
Huntington Supervisor

Thank you to our Nurses and First Reponders

To the Editor:

In this very difficult time with the global pandemic of Coronavirus, and with Easter and Passover this week,we should be particularly thankful for the heroic work being done by our nurses and emergency responders to help keep us safe, while exposing themselves to huge danger.

Nurses go into the "front lines" of battle against the Coronavirus every day. Just imagine going into a place where everyone is sick with COVID-19. Where you job is to attend to sick Corona patients, keep them clean and well-nourished, and try to comfort them it this horrible time when so many patients are terminal.

Our first responders - ambulance drivers, medics, and firefighters - are often the first people on the scene when a sick person calls 911 for help, or is discovered unconscious by a friend or family member. All victims highly contagious with this lethal disease.

Putting yourself in harms way to help others is the definition of courage and heroism. Our nurses and first responders are our heros. We should forever remember and honer their sacrifice and courage in helping all of us get through this national pandemic

Oyster Bay Goes “Online” During Corona

Oyster Bay Supervisor Joe Saladino announced that the town is going “online” to provide residents remote access to town services. The new Town website Town Hall At Home (<http://oysterbaytown.com/tob-at-home>) will give town residents remote access to file necessary documents or order them online.

According to Saladino, Town Hall at Home is designed to provide “a one-stop shop for residents” so that they can access town services from their homes.

Joe Saladino
Oyster Bay Supervisor

Some of the services that are available include ordering documents, like marriage certificates, or paying property taxes, or downloading and printing out forms and applications.

The Town is also providing a “live chat” option, so that residents can get personalized help from a town employee, who can help the residents better access the on-line town services.

The online access provided by Oyster Bay’s new Town Hall At Home is part of flow.

Locust Valley Bookstore’s New Dog

Beau was adopted from the North Shore Animal League.

Valley Bookstore can help you.

Books. We are not ordering any books until we have a better handle on how long the lockdown will be in place. We will, however, deliver or ship from our in-house inventory. Please ask us! We’ve got a bit of everything.

Puzzles. We received more adult and children puzzles on Monday. If you’re on Instagram, you’ve probably seen most of them. They range in price from $15-$20 and 24-pieces to 1000-pieces. We will drop them off.

Easter and Passover. We have cute Easter and Passover books and cards, and we have made a few baskets. If you’d like one, let us know and we can send you some options. Again, our inventory is limited because once the directive came from Albany, we told the Easter Bunny to cease shipments.

Everything we have in the store is 10% off.

I do all of the deliveries. I wear gloves and I don’t get near you. I don’t want to get near you. I leave your package at your door. I will send you an invoice so there is no touching. You can pick the bag up with a tissue. Zero contact, zero interaction.

In closing, I hope that soon we will be on the other side of the awful-ness and we will be able to talk about re-opening and getting our town moving again.

Thanks for reading this, and don’t forget that we are here to help you pass these long days. Please send me an email along the way and let me know how you are doing. We already miss seeing our regular visitors.

Please follow us on Instagram (@locustvalleybookstore) and Facebook and thanks for your support.

We are excited to introduce Beau the bookstore dog! We were despondent when we shut the bookstore over the weekend and what’s the best remedy for a melancholy family? A puppy! Thank you to the North Shore Animal League for our new love!!

Beau is from not such a great place in backwater Georgia (no offense anyone!) and we think he has won the lottery by getting to live with us. He’s really cute with floppy ears, long gazelle-like legs, white fluffy paws with hot-pink pads and he snores at an impressive decibel. Once he is out of the chewing phase, we look forward to introducing him to all of you at the bookstore. Hopefully, he won’t devour our lower shelved inventory. He also needs a major league pedicure before he goes anywhere. We have never seen toenails quite like those that are on Beau.

Mill Neck Rises to the Challenge

The COVID-19 pandemic has created particular challenges for institutions serving people with disabilities. The Mill Neck Family of Organizations—whose mission to serve Deaf and Hard of Hearing children and adults through educational, audiological, community, and faith-based services—is no exception. By remaining focused on its mission and implementing new and innovative initiatives, the organization is successfully rising to the challenge.

Mill Neck CEO Dr. Asiah Mason recently underscored some of the highlights of the organization’s response to this unprecedented crisis. “We have had to make major adjustments to how we deliver services across the board. I’m pleased to report that we are doing well due to our staff members’ rapid planful response and dedication.”

Staff typically take individuals food shopping, assist with bill paying if the adult lives independently, provide money management, assist with medical appointments, medicine renewal, socialization and other important services. The staff are also a source of emotional support at this time, which is a much needed service right now, with some of our individuals losing family members to the virus. During this time, our staff are delivering food donated by the Trinity Lutheran Church of Glen cove and other entities to the participant’s homes, or just taking them out for a ride to get them out of the house to alleviate the feelings of boredom and isolation or whatever else is needed at the time. The program continues to bring light and support to those who otherwise might be forgotten.

• Andy, an older Deaf man, who lives in one of Mill Neck Services ISS apartments recently lost a sibling to the Coronavirus. He was exceptionally close and proud of his older very accomplished sister and was having a very difficult time processing what had happened. His family members do not know sign language and only know “home Signs”. He was not understanding how this could have happened and was very depressed.

When Community Habilitation staff called him and tried to console him, they were met with silence. Andy wasn’t answering his video phone or I-Phone. Knowing that he was so despondent, one of the Mill Neck staff actually went to his home to check on him. They were able to provide emotional support and work on his communication problems and issues. Danny was so relieved to have had that contact, although still very sad about his sister. Mill Neck grieves with Danny at this time and will continue to provide the emotional support he so desperately needs at this time.

Making America Even More Beautiful

Kassie with the finished Wildflower Bombs, ready for drying.

BY DAGMAR FORS KARPPI

Without a program in March or April, because of Corona Virus protocols, the Locust Valley Garden Club sent members instructions for a fun home project. Getting out into the garden and playing with seeds and soil is a great way to sew a little happiness.

The project is based on an article in The New York Times, March 3, by Malia Wollan, about making Wildflower Bombs. The idea of Urban Gardeners started in New York city in the 1970s. The British are doing it today.

LVGC member Kassie Miller Roth was excited by the idea, especially since she has clay in her Locust Valley garden, a key ingredient in the formula. Adding seeds donated by Audrey Rydzewski, to her compost, added the softened clay, and just the way you make pasta dough, and hand blended the mix. She then made small balls and placed them on a cookie sheet to dry in the sun.

Size is relative: using one-part seeds, three parts clay and five parts compost. The size of the “bombs” can be the size of a nickel or a dime. Kassie’s are more, “truffle-size” Wollan’s article recommended.

When the wildflower seed bombs were dry, she placed some of them in a wide circle around the foot of her flowering cherry tree. “Some will be going to Barbara’s Garden at the Locust Valley Library, and some will be tossed in hiking trails,” she said. There is no doubt that they will bloom because Kassie was born with a green thumb.

In May, if we are still keeping close to home, another project is being planned. The Locust Valley Garden Club meets the second Wednesday of the month at Bailey Arboretum’s manor house, Lattingtown. The program fee of $15 includes lunch. Come and learn. For information please contact Dean Yoder at dyinteriors@yahoo.com.

Locust Valley Falcons have earned incredible honors for their accomplishments during the winter sports season. Senior Gage DeNatale was recognized as an All-Long Island wrestler. Senior Paige O'Brien was named to the Newsday First Team All-Long Island for girls basketball. Varsity basketball coach Mike Guidone earned the title of Nassau County Girls Basketball Coach of the Year.

Gage, a New York State wrestling champion, was recognized by Newsday as an All-Long Island wrestler. He has worked tirelessly over the years to become one of the top wrestlers in the state. Gage has proven himself as a leader both on and off the mat, and will continue his wrestling career this fall at the United States Naval Academy.

"There is no one more deserving of this recognition than Gage, and we continue to be proud of each of his accomplishments," said Dr. Danielle Turner, director of physical education, health and athletics.

Paige was chosen by Newsday as one of 10 players and two coaches for the All-Long Island basketball team. Her coach, Mike Guidone, was also selected for this honor.

"Paige is one of hardest-working, hardest-playing, dedicated student-athletes to emerge from Locust Valley," Dr. Turner said. "Her work ethic is second to none, and she has established herself as a leader both on and off the court." During this basketball season, Paige surpassed the 1,000-point mark as one of Locust Valley's all-time leading scorers.

Coach Mike Guidone is not only the Nassau County Girls Basketball Coach of the Year, but he is a Locust Valley hero, a dedicated three-sport coach for girls and boys varsity tennis, as well as girls basketball. He commits himself to each of these programs year-round, not only in season. Dr. Turner said Coach Guidone worked tirelessly to put together practice plans, scouting reports and individualized game plans to guide the girls basketball team to a perfect 23-0 record and to clinch the Nassau County Class A championship title.

"Coach has used the phrase 'all in' this year as a way to energize and motivate his players, and that is exactly the way he coached – all in," she said. "This is a well-deserved honor and represents the tremendous level of commitment that all of our coaches display on a daily basis."

Congratulations to our exceptional Falcons who epitomize the phrase "LV Proud!"
