Bayville Super Block Party

BY VICTORIA SIEGEL

The Village of Bayville has been staging many events beginning this past May, and continues until August to celebrate its Centennial Anniversary.

The Block Party of this past Saturday was deemed to be a great success by all who attended. Ludlam Ave. was closed off from Bayville Ave. to just before First Ave. and tables were adorned with red, white, and blue tablecloths along with chairs were placed in the Bayville Commons parking area as well as on Ludlam Ave. There was a show mobile which allowed for music, the new Tappen Brewery (to officially open July 12th) offering beer tastings, Mill creek offered hot dogs, Bayville Meat Center offered their delicious fried chicken, the Oyster Bay Baymen offered delicious north shore clams, and Gooseberry offered cotton candy. There was also the opportunity to buy your rubber ducky for the Duck Race in August. Didn't buy one? Over the Bridge on Ludlam Ave. is selling them for the committee. The main event was the appearance and performance of the Nassau County Police Dept. Emerald Society Pipe and Drum Corps.

Mayor Bob DeNatale was of course present, and was the person who welcomed everyone to the Block Party as well as introduced the local officials who came to congratulate the Village on its 100th birthday; Congressman Tom Suozzi, County Legislators Lafazan and DeRiggi-Whitton, all the judges, and all of the present Village Board members.

Mayor DeNatale thanked the Centennial Committee for this hard work, as well as all the businesses and organizations who donated their time, talent and goods.

Mayor DeNatale and the Board of Trustees then surprised everyone in announcing that through their action, Legislator Josh Lafazan was now an Honorary Citizen of Bayville since he spends so much time in Bayville.

In 1658 Daniel Whitehead purchased the land that was to become Bayville, from the Matinecock Indians. The eastern portion was known as the Pines, the western portion, Oak Neck. In 1674 the land was divided among 23 men, who used it for pasture. The Bayville name was adopted in 1859.

Incorporated in 1919 during the Incorporated Village Government Movement which allowed many larger estate owners on Long Island to establish political control over their domains. The Village of Bayville was among the first to incorporate on the north shore. Total area of 1.5 square miles of which 1.4 square miles is land and 0.1 square miles or 3.42% is water. Its nickname was Pine Island. a Village located on Long Island Sound on one side facing Greenwich, Connecticut, beautiful Oyster Bay Harbor on the other.

Village offices are located on the former Harrison Williams Estate (carriage house and servants quarters), part of a 23-acre gift to the Village from the Wall Street financier's widow, Mona, after his death in 1953. The gift includes a wooded area named the Harrison Williams Woods. Besides the Village offices, the complex also houses, the Bayville Free Library, Water Dept., Scout Room, and the Bayville Historical Museum.

Oyster Bay Loses Suit

By CHRISTINE LORING

Oyster Bay will pay the plaintiffs Centro de la Comunidad Hispana de Locust Valley and The Workplace Project $1.5 million for legal fees over the last 8-years. Oyster Bay spent over $428,000 in legal fees fighting the plaintiff's suit. U. S. District Judge Denis R. Hurley in Central Islip followed the recommendation of U.S. Magistrate Anne Shields. Judge Shields wrote in her ruling that the fees of the plaintiffs of $1.9 million were billed correctly. The plaintiffs lowered the fee charge to $1.5 million. The Town of Oyster Bay argued that the fees were overbilled.

The Town of Oyster Bay has had an ordinance since 2009 restricting solicitation of work on streets and sidewalks. The workers are represented by Centro de la Comunidad Hispana de Locust Valley. The organization defends the workers in court and says the day laborers are being discriminated against and violates their rights.

On September 3rd, 2015, Judge Hurley, in Central Islip ruled in Memorandum & Order: "In 2009 the Town of Oyster Bay passed an ordinance prohibiting persons standing within or near a public right-of-way from stopping or attempting to stop vehicles to solicit work, and drivers from stopping to solicit employees or accept solicitation of employment. May 18, 2010, plaintiffs Centro De La Comunidad Hispana De Locust Valley and the Workplace Project collectively Plaintiffs commenced this action against defendants Town of Oyster Bay and John Venditto, its Supervisor, collectively Defendants challenging the ordinance on constitutional grounds. Presently before the Court is Plaintiffs' Motion for summary judgment to permanently enjoin the ordinance from going into effect as unconstitutional. The Motion is granted, as explained infra, the ordinance suffers from constitutional overbreadth." The Town mentioned the safety issues concerns, and mentioned that up to 30-50 laborers gather. The judge ruled the ordinance was extremely far-reaching, and wasn't justified as to the safety concerns. In 2017, a federal appeals court upheld that decision, saying the law was an unconstitutional restriction of laborer's First Amendment commercial speech rights.

Town spokesperson Marta Kane said in a recent statement that, "The rulings were a poor decision by the courts as individuals loitering in residential neighborhoods can only lead to safety concerns. The Town is exploring all options to protect the quality of life in our communities."

Budget Surplus in Oyster Bay

Oyster Bay Town Supervisor Joseph Saladino and the Town Board announced that independently-audited financial results indicate the administration and Town Board produced a net $17.7 million budgetary surplus for Town coffers in 2018.

This is the second straight surplus produced by the Saladino administration. Additionally, a commitment by Supervisor Saladino and the Town Board to spending restraints has resulted in the full elimination of the multi-year operational deficit which hit a high of $44 million under the prior administration, one full year ahead of projections. As a result, the Town now has an $8.2 million rainy day fund – the first such in over 7 years. Due to the rapidly improved financial health of the Town, in 2019 there will be no borrowing for cash-flow purposes for the first time in 10 years.

Supervisor Saladino stated, "From cutting property taxes by $2.6 million over two years to new policies that restrict spending, this Town Board has rightsized finances to protect taxpayers. These independently-audited results illustrate that strong management and fiscal discipline can produce budgetary surpluses while eliminating deficits and returning money to taxpayers through a tax cut."

RXR's Amazing Projects

By CHRISTINE LORING

"Amazing things are happening in Glen Cove." The RXR Realty downtown Village Square project is going to be a boon for the City of Glen Cove. The beautiful addition to the downtown area at Glen St., School St. and Brewster St. is going to be a hub. Completion of the project is slated for March 2020. There will be over 17,000 sq. ft. of retail, and a 16,000 sq. ft. plaza. Chase Bank, Brewology and others have signed on.

Architect David Minno touts the different colors and shapes of the building, which include a rounded corner at one edge of the plaza, and flat facades elsewhere. The inspiration for the project is from European plazas, in Siena and Lucca, Italy, and Prague. The project will include 118 one-bedroom and studio units and 28 two-bedroom units. Most of the parking would be in a garage underneath the residences at the same level as the stores. The rest would be in a surface lot and in 64 spaces in a nearby parking garage. RXR is proposing to lease those spaces from the city.

Millennials and empty-nesters who enjoy living in a pedestrian friendly area are the target audience. Residents would be able to go to restaurants, cafes and stores either in the plaza or nearby.

Residents would also have a short walk to Garvies Point, the huge resort style waterfront development which will include:

1,100 apartments and condominiums. The first phase of Garvies Point includes 385 rental apartments at Harbor Landing, where a building with 175 apartments opens in September and a second building with 210 apartments is expected to open by the end of the year.

The development will have acres of open space with a 1-mile waterfront esplanade. There will be miles of walkways and connecting trails to the Garvies Point Preserve and Pratt Park. Included there will be a bike path, dog park, children's playgrounds, ecology pier and amphitheater. Marinas, boat launch, kayak and stand-up paddleboard launches, beach, boardwalk and recreational parks will all be added in the 56-acres. A retail area, restaurants and cafe with outdoor seating will be on the water.

When Glen Cove's ferry service is up and running, with ferries to New York City, it will be very convenient for residents living down the street from the ferry terminal.

Accident at St. John's

The young driver from New Jersey was arrested for intoxication.

By VICTORIA CROSBY

A driver heading north on Lattingtown Road, with New Jersey license plates, lost control of his vehicle around 1:00 AM on Saturday morning, June 29th, and crashed into a wall at St John's of Lattingtown Episcopal Church, knocking down the wall and a utility pole. The driver and young passengers were not seriously injured, however, the power company reported over six hundred homes were without power for several hours, on a very hot and humid night.

St John's is located on the corner of Old Tappan, Overlook and Lattingtown Roads. A new stop sign was recently added to Overlook Road by the Village of Lattingtown, and a reduced rate of speed was posted. This isn't the first time the church property has been damaged by a speeding driver.

A crossing guard is present on Sundays, but not during the week when children attend the St John's Little Learners nursery school. The school playground is not far from the damaged wall. Speeding continues to be a problem in this area, and the curve on Lattingtown Road is a blind spot. The Rev. Mark Fitzhugh, Rector of St. John's, has suggested more signage, and perhaps cameras, would be helpful to prevent further serious accidents.

THE NORTH SHORE'S RESPONSE TO LYME-INFECTED DEER

The deer population on the North Shore is exploding - and creating a public health emergency. Virtually every local deer is infected with Lyme Disease and Babesiosis. And every deer is crawling with deer ticks - the average deer sheds about 50,000 infected ticks each year - spraying them all over our lawns and gardens.

The result is that more people are being bitten and infected by infected deer ticks. Lyme Disease has surged, with children and older residents particularly at risk: Lyme Disease causes joint swelling, chronic headaches and fatigue, and can reduce a child's IQ by up to 10 points - and generate a lifetime of fatigue and joint arthritis - if not caught and treated immediately. Babesiosis acts like Malaria to destroy red blood cells. It can result in exhaustion and life-threatening seizures. Both diseases shorten life, and, if not caught early, can be fatal.

The public health solution should be relatively straightforward: Cull the deer. For every deer culled, there are 50,000 fewer infected ticks. Two years ago, Lloyd Harbor's cull netted some 400 deer - representing 20 million fewer infected ticks in our bushes, gardens and woods.

But over the past few years, government has made it harder to cull deer: Nassau County now bans all hunting; Huntington introduced new, more restrictive bow hunting laws; and New York State - which arranges the cull in Lloyd Neck's Caumsett Park - has actually cancelled the deer cull.

Many residents - terrified that someone in their homes will catch Lyme Disease or Babesiosis - have taken matters into their own hands: Insect-spray services - spraying "organic" or "non-organic" anti-Tick poisons onto our lawns and flowerbeds - have proliferated. But that solution is only temporary and confined to one yard - and spreads poisons into our air and groundwater.

The latest wave of "natural" tick control is for residents to get chickens, which are voracious tick-eaters. A dozen chickens wandering and pecking over your yard, can clear 2 acres of property in no time. And they lay eggs, which are a wonderful benefit.

The only controversy over chickens is the morning crowing of roosters - some villages have even issued residents tickets for too much early morning crowing. And some communities have lined up into rival camps: pro-Chickens and Roosters vs anti-Chickens and Roosters.

The Leader stands proudly for more pro-human wildlife - Chickens and Roosters; and for bringing-back a serious deer cull to reduce the numbers of disease-infected deer on our properties.

THANK YOU

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Board of Directors, patrons, and members of the North Shore Historical Museum, I would like to thank Nassau County Legislator Delia DeRiggi-Whitton for securing a Hotel & Motel Occupancy Tax Fund grant of $50,000 to help us complete our final phase of restoring the 1907 Justice Court building located at 140 Glen Street, Glen Cove. This third and final phase is to restore the ornamentation on the facade. It will complete the project to "Raise the Eagle" which is part of the ornamentation and will be the crowning glory which has taken 17 years to accomplish.

The 1907 building houses the North Shore Historical Museum which is in its 7th year of operation since opening the building and whose mission is to preserve the history of the North Shore. It is important to our community both architecturally and historically to restore and preserve the building which was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1990.

Thanks to volunteers, fund raising, grants and donations and support from Legislator DeRiggi-Whitton, we will be able to complete this Herculean task.

Sincerely,
Georgina Connett
President

Harbor Boat Named for Sgt. James B. Middleton

By VICTORIA CROSBY

A Boston Whaler, purchased through a grant from Nassau County, was added to the fleet of the Glen Cove Harbor Patrol, and a christening ceremony took place recently at the Glen Cove Yacht Yard. The 24-foot boat was named for the late James Middleton, a veteran of WW II, and a much loved person in the City of Glen Cove. Middleton was one of the founders of the Young-Simmons American Legion Post 1765, which at that time was one of the only American Legion posts that admitted African Americans.

People attending the ceremony included Glen Cove Mayor Tim Tenke, City Councilwoman Marsha Silverman, Nassau County Legislator Delia DeRiggi-Whitton, Glen Cove Director of Veteran's Affairs and former City Councilman, Tony Jimenez, veterans and members of the community.

Middleton died in June of 2017 aged 91. His sister, Eleanor Middleton and John Testa, Harbor Patrol Chief, broke a bottle of champagne on the boat, as it was christened Sgt. James B. Middleton.

Oyster Bay Historical Society Exhibition of Jerelyn Hanrahan

Jerelyn Hanrahan's exhibition.

Jerelyn Hanrahan is a local and native artist of Oyster Bay and is mostly known for her interesting signature Graduated Pearls, a 50-foot set of pearls from cast concrete, rope, and cast steel. It is a pleasure having Jerelyn at the Oyster Bay Historical Society providing us the opportunity to showcase local talent which represents the fabric of our town.

Her local sponsors Nobman's Hardware and The Printery have collaboratively provided the necessary support to make this new Retrospective exhibit a success. The exhibition presents an ambitious international career that culminates from nearly four decades of work and features the artist's experimentation with varying mediums, aesthetics, and conceptual projects.

Jerelyn Hanrahan graduated from St. Dominic's high school in 1973, which marked the start of extensive travel throughout the United States, Europe, and Mexico with trusted friend Marie Colvin. It was while exiting the Uffizi in Florence, Italy and 19 years old that Jerelyn Hanrahan made the conscious choice to devote her life to being an artist.

Upon completing her Fine Arts Degree she entered the vital Lower East Side art scene in 1980 and began a series of paintings on found doors and windows, participating in a variety of exhibitions in galleries springing up in the Lower East Side. Simultaneously she painted a series of plein air cityscapes, and oil portraits documenting the cast of characters she interacted with in her daily life. The artist had multiple studios in New York, each allowing her to explore a new chapter. She worked out of spaces on Union square, Avenue A, Houston Street and Avenue B, and eventually settled into the top floor of 195 Chrystie Street where she continued to work for several years. It was in the Chrystie Street space that the artist's work took a definitive and pivotal turn.

The series of large biomorphic oil paintings were intuitively developed through thick impasto application. Frustrated with the two-dimensional surface, the artist began a series of woodcuts, and during a residency program at the Zen Mountain Monastery in Mt. Tremper, New York, the artist carved her first wood sculpture, Graven Image. Hanrahan then returned to New York, and after months of frustrating with her painting decided to take a trip to India. The carved architecture and temples in India, marked the second turn of Hanrahan's artistic trajectory, she returned to the states to begin a self-taught investigation of sculpture. The new series of sculptures and works on paper culminated into a solo exhibition at the 626 Gallery in New York. With the profits from the exhibition the artist decided to move her studio to Italy to learn, the traditional skills of stone carving. She set up her studio in the town of Pietrasanta, making lifelong friends, and fine tuning her skill set as a sculptor.

It was in her circle back to New York with a young daughter that Jerelyn Hanrahan decided to return to Oyster Bay, a town she loved growing up in. The Sculptors Guild of which she was a member elected her as President during this time. As President she quickly expanded its trajectory and completed a series of large public sculptures and curatorial projects in Cologne, Germany, Stockholm, Sweden and the first sculpture exhibition on Governors Island, entitled INSITE, featuring the work of sixty-seven international sculptors.

The current exhibit is through Aug. 16th. www.oysterbayhistorical.org 20 Summit Street 516-922-5032.

Huntington Boating Safety

Supervisor Chad A. Lupinacci is encouraging all residents who venture out on Huntington's waterways to register for the advanced boating safety training course "Emergencies On Board," presented by Neptune Sail and Power Squadron in coordination with the Town of Huntington, at Huntington Town Hall on Monday, August 12.

"I am pleased to announce that the Town is expanding the boating safety training provided under the Victoria Gaines Boating Safety Program to now include advanced boating safety courses presented by Neptune Sail and Power Squadron, which address planning for and troubleshooting boating emergencies – information that can save lives," said Supervisor Chad A. Lupinacci.

The Town of Huntington offers free basic boating safety certification training in the spring season leading into the summer boating months. Attendees who register, attend a full 8-hour course, and pass the test receive a NYS Boating Safety Credential issued by NYS Parks.

The courses now offered by Neptune Sail and Power Squadron at Town Hall provide advanced boating safety training, which complements the basic training course offered by the Town however completing the basic boating safety course is not required to attend the advanced training presented by Neptune Sail and Power Squadron.

Philip Quarles, Education Commander for Neptune Sail and Power Squadron, stated: "The Neptune Sail and Power Squadron was founded in 1938 and has been serving Town of Huntington for 83 years teaching boating safety and advanced boating courses. We are honored to be partnering with the Town of Huntington offering classes to residents. "Emergencies on Board" will be offered on August 12th. You can learn more by visiting www.neptuneboating-club.com."

Fentanyl Sanctions Act

Citing a rare chance for Long Island to finally put a major dent in the opioid epidemic by tackling a key trafficker: China, U.S. Senator Charles Schumer made the case and rallied, with local law enforcement for swift passage of his bipartisan Fentanyl Sanctions Act in Congress. The plan has already passed the Senate with Schumer's pushing, but still needs to pass the House. The legislation will set aside at least $450 million that, amongst other measures, will help support New York efforts like DEA and High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area (HIDTA) work.

In New York State, from November 2017 to 2018, approximately 2,000 people died from an opioid overdose.

About 1,500 of those deaths were from synthetic opioids like fentanyl. The Long Island-area coordinates a High Intensity Drug Trafficking (HIDTA) team and works especially close with the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA).

"Drug traffickers based overseas are flooding the United States with deadly fentanyl. While we've made tremendous strides in the battle against opioids here on Long Island, we need the federal government to intervene and stop these drugs from ever arriving on our shores. The Fentanyl Sanctions Act will bring us one step closer to ending opioid epidemic," said Nassau County District Attorney Madeline Singas.

BY DAGMAR FORS KARPPI

Locust Valley Garden Club members enjoyed a view of Oyster Bay Harbor from the open porch of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club during their installation luncheon, June 12. The officers for the 2019-2020 year include: Dean Yoder, president, Jonathan Grimm, vice president, Susan Caravello, recording secretary, and Lee Pederson, treasurer (was not present). It was also the day they honored the club's NYS District 2 Garden Club Perennial Bloom Award.

Picking one winner this year, was so difficult for the club, chose two recipients. One, a member for 30 years, Sandra Watkins; and Kasturie "Kassie" Miller Roth, a member for eight years.

President Margie Hepp said, "Both have exhibited the necessary qualifications of helping the club to grow and bloom with their continued efforts to add to the life of the club." Seeing their participation in service to the club gives a great picture of the opportunities offered.

President Hepp explained, Sandra Watkins, formerly of Lattingtown, and now Bayville has served as recording secretary and then as president from 1989 to 1991. She has chaired many committees: Junior Garden Club, Luncheon Chair, Junior Flower Show, Reception Chair, Meals on Wheels. She has also served on committees and contributed the life of the club: bringing luncheon dishes over and over; decorating the Locust Valley Library for the holidays; winning the top award in Standard Flower Shows from her first entry and throughout the ensuing years. She helped set-up flower shows and the scholarship luncheon over the years. Sandra continues to be the greeter at each meeting, collecting fees and handing out nametags so new members can learn who we all are. Her smile welcomes each member and guest.

Margie said, Kassie (Kasturie) Miller Roth got her love of horticulture growing up in Trinidad. She has served on the LVGC board since her first year of membership. Currently she is the club historian, chair of the luncheon floral centerpieces. She co-chairs two gardens the club maintains: Barbara's Garden at of the Locust Valley Library and the Secret Garden at Bailey Arboretum. She assists the publicity chairman; helps with the Scholarship Fundraiser each year, helped decorate the LVL for the holidays, and helps decorate a display case at the LVL to publicize the club. She won the Member's Choice Award at the 2018 Petite Flower Show. She enjoys taking part in the Club's Senior Therapy at Rosewood Assisted Living in Bayville. Kassie has been the driving force in the club's participation in the Locust Valley Memorial Day parade for the past several years. "Whenever something needs to be done, Kassie's energy fills the bill."

The LVGC meets the second Wednesday of the month at Bailey Arboretum Manor at 10 AM for a gardening program and lunch: donation $12. For information please contact Dean Yoder dyinteriors@yahoo.com or call Gerry McKey at 671-8987.

LI Protests Immigrant Camps

BY VICTORIA CROSBY

On Tuesday July 2nd, thousands of people throughout the country attended Close the Camps rallies, protesting the treatment of immigrant children, who have been separated from their families, and from some reports have been denied basic hygiene needs, such as soap and toothpaste.

A much smaller, yet equality passionate group, showed up on Long Island at the corner of Rt. 112, Patchogue Road, and Nesconset Highway 347. They paraded with large signs, some wearing the mylar blankets that the children are given at the camps. There were quite a few children with their parents, and one young boy had a sign written in Spanish, which translates to We are all Immigrants. We are all people. There were several police cars present, but the protest was peaceful. Cars honked in support as they drove by. The rallies were organized by Move On and other advocacy organizations.

BY VICTORIA CROSBY

In Oyster Bay Cove recently, Moorelands, the estate of Oleg Cassini, who died in 2006 at the age of ninety-two, was open to the public for a preview of the items for sale at auction by Doyle, and were available for viewing three days prior to the auction.

Several hundred people each day wandered through the many rooms of the mansion, which was filled with the antiques, collectibles, and memorabilia which had been collected by Cassini over his lifetime, including letters from Jackie Kennedy and Grace Kelly, to whom Cassini was engaged, before she married Prince Rainier of Monaco in 1956. The Kennedy memorabilia was housed in a separate section next to the main house, except for the dresses which were displayed in the foyer.

The property, which is over forty-three-acres, was overgrown, and the house in need of repair, but is now in contract with a new owner, and it is hoped that the house and property will be restored. The original asking price was $19.5 million, then reduced to $13.5 million.

Wandering from one overflowing room to another, viewing items from both Moorelands and Cassini's townhouse on 19th Street in Manhattan, there was an abundance of paintings, furniture, art objects, crystal, and his designer clothing and perfumes.

There was great security, as was to be expected at such an event.

Every item sold, including the three cars that were outside, a Rolls Royce, and two Mercedes, which were parked in front of the house. The amount of sales was a little over one million dollars.

GRENVILLE BAKER BOYS & GIRLS CLUB

OLD FASHIONED CLAM BAKE IN AUGUST

What could be better on a summer evening than enjoying a good old fashioned Clam Bake with friends? How fortunate we are to live in a seaside community where parties on the beach are a natural part of summer. At Grenville Baker Boys & Girls Club, we are excited to invite you to our Old Fashioned Clam Bake on August 10th! The first Grenville Baker Boys Club Clam Bake was held more than fifty years ago and for more than thirty years it was an annual event on the Club social calendar. Parents, volunteers, alumni, and staff would gather to enjoy good food and great conversation with friends while savoring the beauty of the beach setting on a warm summer evening. It was always a light-hearted occasion and the perfect way to celebrate the season. In 2015, as part of our 65th Anniversary celebration, the Club revived the Clam Bake tradition after a fifteen year hiatus and it has once again become an annual event. The past four years, the event has sold out and for good reason. At Stehli Beach, the setting is gorgeous, the food is delicious, and the company of alumni, family and friends is warm and welcoming!

This year's celebration will begin at 6:00 PM on August 10th and will feature lobsters, clams, sausage and peppers, corn on the cob, potatoes, beer, and soft drinks. Only 150 tickets are available. An adult only event, the cost will be $75 per person and you are encouraged to purchase tickets on line or at the Club as early as possible. This promises to be a sellout event once again. No tickets will be sold at the door.

We have a stalwart band of volunteers who lead the charge to make sure our event continues to meet the high standards set all those years ago. Please consider joining them. Enthusiasm is high, fueled by a strong sense of nostalgia for the many summers and Clam Bakes gone by. For more information regarding the Clam Bake, please call or email Karli Portnoy at 516-759-5437 ext. 231, Karli.Portnoy@gbbgc.org or visit www.gbbgc.org.
